VEENA

The veena is a stringed musical instrument that has been an integral part of Indian classical music for centuries. It is known for its rich, resonant sound and is often used in solo performances and in ensemble settings. The instrument has a long neck with frets and a large, rounded body. It is played by plucking the strings with the right hand while the left hand is positioned on the neck to fret the notes. The veena is considered one of the most beautiful and expressive instruments in the Indian musical tradition.
